

DATING CONTRACT (GIRLS)

I, _____, agree to the terms of this contract allowing me the privilege of dating. I acknowledge that if I violate this agreement, my privilege of dating may be restricted.

I will first and foremost continue to be responsible in my family, church, and school. My dating relationship will not be prioritized over my family or my relationship with Jesus.

I have reviewed my purity contract and commit to the boundaries and principles I made then.

I commit to be wise when asking someone on a date or entering a dating relationship. I will ask myself questions such as: Is he a Christian? How does he live out his faith? What is his reputation? How does he treat others? How quickly does he change girlfriends? Is this a young man that my parents would approve of?

After talking with my parents, if I choose to enter a dating relationship, I will ask for her parents' permission.

I will respect his parents. I will respect their rules and boundaries. His relationship with his parents and his family is more important than his relationship with me. I will continually honor and respect my boyfriend. One of the best ways for me to do that is how I treat him and how we respond to the boundaries in place. I understand that the below list of boundaries is not meant to be all-encompassing but helps set the condition for our relationship.

- We will not be alone at either house.
- Doors will be open in any room we are in together.
- I will not ask for or send inappropriate texts or pictures.
- We will honor curfews as set by the parents.

I will communicate my plans with my parents. During any date, I will leave my cell phone on and will answer it immediately if my parents call. Friends are important. While involved in a dating relationship, I will be sure to continue associating with my friends and encourage him to spend time with his friends as well.

I understand that this written agreement is necessary. I understand that the terms of this agreement may be changed based on how I handle the freedom and responsibility of dating.

I understand that if my parents judge that I am not doing well they can revise the rules and make them stricter AND if I'm doing well, they can relax the rules. I have read the above agreement and sign this in accordance with the rules.
